ABOUT THE WINERY

Vinícola de Nulles is a cooperative founded in 1917 in the village of Nulles, in the Alt Camp comarca of Tarragona, Catalunya. Local vine growers formed it to recover together after phylloxera.

Cèsar Martinell, a disciple of Antoni Gaudí, built their cellar between 1919 and 1920. The arches are parabolic and laid in exposed brick. The cooperative could not afford steel or concrete, so Martinell worked in masonry, perforating the spandrels to lighten the load carried across each span. The Generalitat de Catalunya declared the building a national cultural heritage site in 2002. Cellars like this one are known in Catalunya as cathedrals of wine.

Nearly 100 members farm about 400 hectares around the village. Ninety percent of the fruit becomes base wine for cava sold on to larger houses.

WINEMAKING PHILOSOPHY

Rooted in the cooperative principle that the vineyard is the foundation of their craft. Their guiding ethos: "Loving and being passionate about the land are the essence of thorough work."

Under the Adernats brand, they pursue quality through proper vineyard work, organic certification, no dosage sparkling wines, and minimal SO2 additions — expressing the terroir of this millennial wine region.
